MOROSINI THE BANKER

Career of Italian Who Was Loyal to Jay Gould.

A FOLLOWER OF GARIBOLDI.

Got His Start in New York by Saving Erie Official's Son—Rose to Fortune From a Sailor Boy—Was Called Gould's Bodyguard.

Giovanni P. Morosini, the well known banker, who recently died at his estate in Riverside, N. Y., was at one time closely associated with the late Jay Gould, through whom he built up a fortune estimated at several millions.

In Mr. Morosini's New York has lost one of its most picturesque figures. He was born in Venice, Italy, in 1832, in the stirring times which led to the formation of the present kingdom. As a boy he was an actor in some of the hazardous events of the revolution. He was a follower of Garibaldi.

Mr. Morosini owed his first step on the road to fortune to his courage and strength in defending in the streets of New York a boy attacked by a crowd of toughs. He owed his later accession to fortune to his fidelity to the late Jay Gould. In the latter's fight against being ousted from the control of the Erie railroad, he was the Tunkie's ally in Albany, when a lucky accident brought him to the notice of the American consul. By his advice he decided to come to the new world, and in 1850 he landed, a penniless stranger, in Boston.

The California gold fever was then at its height, and Morosini at first planned to try his fortune in the land of gold, but Garibaldi was in Staten Island and attracted to his side the young adventurer. For a time he worked in the patriot's camp, and when that was abandoned he followed Garibaldi on his voyage to China and England. He was only a sailor before the mast, but in London he attracted the attention of Mazzini and was picked out from all the crew by him.

Garibaldi went to Genoa and Morosini came back to New York. He was still only a common sailor, but when a mere accident which saved him from the life of a hand before the mast. One night as he was going home along one of the streets near the water front, he heard a cry of distress from a group of boys. He saw a boy on the ground and others beating him. He broke through the crowd, rescued the boy, and when they were tormenting the boy and up-braided them for their cowardice. Not a man came to his aid. The gang, recovering from their foolishness, rushed in on him. He struck and left, felled four or five and drew his long sailor's knife. Then with a rush he drove his assailants back and gave the boy a way out of the water.

He still expected to go to sea again until, to his surprise, a day or two later he received a visit from the boy he had rescued. He turned out to be the son of a nautical man, secretary of the Erie railroad company, and he came to bring Morosini to his father, Mr. Marsh at once. The young sailor, the young sailor and found him a place as office boy with the Erie company at a salary of $30 a month.

Mr. Morosini entered on his new employment on May 28, 1853. He was far too well educated to stay long in a subordinate place. In a few years he was appointed general auditor of the Erie railroad and its leased lines.

This brought him into contact with Jay Gould. He first met him in 1858, and a year or two later, when the great fight for the control of the Erie began, he threw in his lot with the financier. It is said that at the height of the struggle the party at the head of which was Gould offered him $100,000 for a transcript of certain parts of the records of the railroad. Mr. Morosini refused the offer for the connection, Gould to retain his hold upon the road.

But when the Biscoffsheim party obtained control the general auditor found his place most unpleasant. At length President Watson called upon him to either give up his allegiance to Mr. Gould or leave the company. He chose the latter alternative and from that hour was known as a trusted follower of the financier.

Wall street regarded Mr. Morosini as something more than a confidential secretary to Mr. Gould, who was his new tie. Because of his huge frame and well known strength he was called Gould's "bodyguard." Many stories were told of him in this connection, and it was asserted that on one occasion a promoter who had penetrated into the inner sanctum of Mr. Gould and would not without having himself picked up bodily by the secretary and dropped outside the door.

Adequate And Inadequate:

In his memorable address before the Chamber of Commerce at Pittsburgh, Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, conclusively exhibited the difference in progress between cities with adequate facilities for transportation by water and cities whose facilities for water transportation were inadequate. The difference was all the more marked because the fact that the two classes of cities were under one and the same government, with the government extending its generous aid to one class and withholding it from the other.

The cities cited by Senator Knox were Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit, Milwaukee, Toledo and Duluth—eight cities having a combined population of 714,988 in 1870, and of 3,241,273 in 1900, a period of twenty years. The other cities were St. Louis, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Louisville, Kansas City, Memphis, Evansville and Wheeling. In 1870 the combined population of these was 902,370. In 1900 it was 1,756,932. There is no good reason, so far as industrial and commercial resources, climate, location and other reasonable elements are considered, why the eight cities first named should have had less population than the other cities in 1870 and three times the population twenty years later—in 1900—but there is a reason nevertheless.

Between 1870 and 1900 the government of the United States improved the lake channels and deepened and improved the harbors of the eight lakes and neglected the rivers on whose banks the other eight cities were located, and as Senator Knox admirably put it: "That fact that the lake channels have been improved to a continuous depth of twenty-one feet and a large share of the harbors deepened proportionately, compared to the interruptions and the limitations of imperfectly improved rivers, establishes a conclusion which, once seen, cannot be ignored. It is a conclusion that is irresistible. There is no reason why there should be improvement of one channel of waterway transportation to the neglect of another like channel of equal if not of greater importance, for it is inevitable that the one great feeder to the Panama Canal will be the Ohio River. That is a fact which must be conceded in the light of the enormously rich and valuable resources of the Ohio Valley States. The Ohio Valley Improvement Association is enlisted in the battle for the life of the Ohio and the life of the trade and commerce, industrial, agricultural and mining interests of the Ohio Valley. It urges on all industrial, agricultural and mining industries and on all communities in the Valley to send to the forthcoming Louisville Convention of October 22 and 23, representatives who will exhibit the difference in progress between cities with adequate facilities for transportation by water and cities whose facilities for water transportation were inadequate. The difference was all the more marked because the fact that the two classes of cities were under one and the same government, with the government extending its generous aid to one class and withholding it from the other.

BENEFITS IN DISEASE.

Typhoid, if You Pull Through, Gives You a New Stomach.

GOOD EVEN IN RHEUMATISM.

That Painful Affliction Keeps Other Miseries Out of the System and is a Promoter of Long Life—Blessings of Colds and Snailpox.

To be struck down by disease seems a most undesirable thing, yet there are many living today in the fullest enjoyment of very excellent health who but for an attack of some disease would have lived a life of almost perpetual misery.

Those people were, first of all, victims of indigestion in its worst form, and only those who have experienced it know what true indigestion is. Struck down by typhoid fever, they came through the trying ordeal cured of indigestion, for one outstanding eccentricity of typhoid is that if you pass through an attack safely it gives you a new stomach. In fact, after an attack of typhoid the victim is usually left with a stomach like an infant.

That is the grand chance offered to one who has suffered from it, may be, for long years from acute indigestion. If only he takes care, after an attack of typhoid he need never know indigestion again.

Be it remembered that any one troubled with severe indigestion is not advised to go hunting around for typhoid fever. That might prove to be a disastrous course to follow.

A chronic cold is just one of those things which none of us want, yet even a chronic cold has its good points, more especially if you happen to be in years a bit—not too old, of course. People who are up in years and who suffer from chronic bronchitis seem to get remarkably well. It keeps the blood in good circulation, for, of course, the victim has to cough, and that gives the heart a jerk and sends the blood coursing nicely through the veins and arteries.

If the cold be not too acute, old people derive considerable benefit. An acute attack, on the other hand, may cut off an old person in a day or two. It is the chronic type only which yields benefit.

Snailpox is a dreaded scourge, so much so that if it be reported that a case exists in a neighborhood a thrill passes through the whole community.

Yet those who come from snailpox and recover usually live to a great old age. It seems to renew life in some mysterious way by thoroughly purifying the blood.

If, however, you desire to attain to a ripe old age, you cannot get on at all without rheumatism. Consider the hosts of old folks you encounter hobbling about, grumbling at all the ailments about their bones and joints. In all probability these old people would have been in their graves years before but for this very affliction.

The reason is that if rheumatism is in the system it keeps other ills out. It makes a great fighting force and keeps most of the other ailments from getting a foothold in the human frame at bay, especially those of the germ type.

Very naturally if you have such a great friend at hand you have to pay something for aid rendered, but the pain of rheumatism, if shockingly severe at times, is not deadly, and that is why it is so little sympathetic when suffering from rheumatism.

But the plain fact is that a slight malady always benefits you, even if indirectly, as an example of that, a very slight cold or a little weather coming along, cold and wet, and you contract a slight chill.

What do you propose to do? Why, to take the greatest care of yourself and make as certain as possible that your cold gets no chance of developing into anything worse. Now, did you get a slight cold or a little weather and came you to be extremely careful of what you did there is no saying what might happen to you any day during a spell of evil, cold weather. You might have exposed yourself so much that a feverish chill would have seized you, followed by inflammation of the lungs.

Accordingly a slight cold may easily save you from many worse ills.

In this way minor afflictions act as warnings that worse things are coming along, but unfortunately many persons quite neglect these warnings. A man, for example, has indigestion more or less constantly, yet pays heed, always, to the warning that it will appear any day. Now, if he had just paid attention to the matter at the beginning—heed the warning, in short he might not have been let in for a severe liver attack later on.

Every pain, every ache, every headache—all these are warnings that something is on the way and will be along shortly—Pearson's Weekly.

"Well," answered Mr. Curoox doubtfully, "he has had a lot of experience with promissory notes and he knows how to get a check raised"—Washington Star.

The farmers under a protective tariff are satisfied and are all stand-patters.

Mr. Bryan is now appealing to the "young men." Probably he realizes the futility of appealing to those who can remember those "sixteen-to-one" and "cross-of-gold" days.—Chicago Evening Post.

Hugh Frymire is the only outspoken Hearst man we know of in this county. He is red-hot for him. He was formerly a Democrat, but he says that party is on its last legs, and after this campaign it will be a thing of the past. He thinks the Independence League will take its place in the next campaign. Mr. Frymire thinks he will canvass the county in the interest of Hearst and his party.

We have a real live Democratic Club in this town. They have opened up for business in the old Post Office, next to the News Office. Are the Republicans all dead, they must be as we don't hear of them doing anything. They had better get busy. They haven't got as easy a going thing as they think for. We believe Taft could carry this state with the right kind of work. But he'll never do it with the Republicans all asleep. Wake up men and as President Roosevelt says put some ginger into the campaign.

Col. Ben Johnson made a good clean record in his seat in Congress last session. He was in his place at every roll call. He filled it too, as very few men have ever filled it for the first term. He took to it like a duck to water. He was there for business and he did business. Pity we haven't had a man like him there for the past twenty years. Our rivers especially the Ohio would have been in very much better shape we are sure. Ben Johnson is a worker, he's not an idler, a time killer, but a hard worker. He's been a busy man all his life, in public and private walks. And that's the secret of his success. We need such men to look after our interests, and when we get a man like Johnson we ought to keep him there. They do it in other States, why not in Kentucky? Democrats, Republicans, Independents and good citizens who believe in the man and his works should support Ben Johnson. The News intends to do it with a hearty good will.

There is no humbuggery about Mr. Taft. You know just where he stands on every question. His record is an open book. In his speeches last week he stood face to face with the representatives of organized labor, and did not budge from his previous position as a judge in issuing injunctions in industrial cases, and by appealing to the reason of his hearers he won, we believe, a great moral victory; though he did not hesitate to say that he differed with Mr. Gompers, and he characterized the secondary boycott as unfair and unwise in terms which no man could misunderstand. Mr. Taft says:

"It has been sought to give the impression that this record of mine as a Judge shows that I am unfriendly to labor. Nothing could be further from the fact. No one that I know has more sympathy with the laboring man, no one that I know is more anxious for legislation which will enable the wage earner to maintain himself in the struggle for a livelihood and in his relations with a powerful employer. My relations to labor have not been confined to decisions upon the bench. As the executive in charge of the work on the Panama Canal I have had under me for four years upward of thirty thousand laborers. I have had occasion in the Philippines to deal with labor questions there, and I feel very confident that no one at all cognizant of the situation will charge that in my administration of the office of Governor of the islands I was not fully alive to the interests of the laboring men."

The difference between Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan, is that Mr. Taft has had the practical experience in most every phase of government, we know what he has done and will do. In Mr. Bryan we have only the theory, and promises and all of them are dead issues.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 600 North 5th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peru-na has done me a world of good I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eyes of some who has suffered as I did."

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peru-na and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peru-na as prescribed by Dr. Hartman.

He receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to woman-kind.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman treats annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

While not all afflicted with Peru-na will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peru-na a fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lapelle, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peru-na. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition."

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peru-na, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Mrs. M. Kilmer, 2608 E. 38th St., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"I am enjoying good health since taking your medicine. I had suffered for a good many years previous to taking Peru-na, and ever since I can say that I do not know what headache or neuralgia is. I can most assuredly say that anybody afflicted with catarrh in any form can be cured by taking Peru-na."

Homer Tindle attended the ice cream supper at Patesville Saturday night.

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high we are being refreshed—bone, muscle and brain, in body and mind—with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take SHEATH-KNICKERS TO RULE. Fashion And Necessity Demand That Only The Silk or Satin "Pants" May Be Worn With The New Gowns.

We are upon the verge of all the seething turmoil of the reign of terror; the parallel of the French revolution is about to be enacted in our midst, for whereas the French a hundred years ago only tore down the customs and conceptions of centuries, we, that is our mediocres, are about to rend asunder the manner, that is the woman's manner, of dress.

Whatever else the well-dressed woman this winter does or do not do, they must not be caught with petticoats. Not even the bride must wear a petticoat. Instead there is a delightful arrangement of silk or satin called sheath-knickers, "just like pants," as the village seamstress gaped in anguish at sight of them this morning, at the fashion exposition now in progress at the Auditorium.

FASHION AND NECESSITY DEMAND.

Fashion has descended through the medium of Elizabeth A. C. White, manager of the show, that with certain gowns the sheath-knickers must be worn, and, indeed, viewing the models, it would seem that necessity also demands that they be worn. With certain dresses one may wear a thin silk skirt over the knickers, but nothing thicker than cambric handkerchief.

This morning the princess skirt last year is the same thing this year, only it ain't called princess. Anything above the waist line is called a redingote. They ain't been in style since I can remember, eighteen or nineteen years. Another word for them is "corset." That's a pretty sweet word for them. "Then another dress this season is the chamoisee, that means a charming woman. You always heard of the chamoisee during the Parisian revolution and the empire days, and everything now is after that period, you know."—Chicago Post.

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

My nervous system gave away completely, and I fell on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I bought Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and I owe my recovery to Dr. Miles' Nervine. Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

Your doctor sells Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

Are You Regular?

If you are not, it is a sign of disease, a sign of some hidden trouble, that may be undermining and weakening your constitution, and laying up for you many future sufferings.

clean men. Not men with clean faces and hands, merely, but clean all through—heart, mind and soul.

That is the reason why we wish he never would get the idea into his head that it makes a boy more manly to go around with a pipe or cigarette in his mouth. A roll of tobacco, with fire at one end of it and a boy at the other, never yet made much of a man. It takes more than that.

It is because we love him so that we want him to be as honest as the day is long. A man who looks you in the eye and never cheats himself nor anybody else is a man whether he has a cent in his pocket or not.

We want our boy to master all there is to be mastered around the farm and everywhere else, so far as may be right and true and helpful. He needs to know about horses, cows, colts, calves, hens, sheep and all the other farm friends, an how to care for them.

We are anxious, too, that he should learn to use the farm machinery to the best possible advantage.

But there is another machine we should like him to know so well that he will take care of it, no matter what may come—and that is his own body. If that gets broken-down it is not very easy to mend it.—Farm Journal.

Millions in Rail- way Improvements.

This is not the day of greedy expansion into new territory by the great railroad systems of the United States—it is not the era of warfare among railroad presidents for rights of way into undeveloped country and neither is the period of acquiring branch lines which connect with the main systems. It is the period of physical development of railroad systems, in the fullest sense of the term.

What does the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars by the various railroads mean? Ask the railroad kings who are authorizing the expenditures, or, better still, go to the points where the money is spent and the answer is obvious—physical development.

The Pennsylvania Railroad occupies the foremost position from the standpoint of magnitude of improvements now under way. In the past six years it has planned for the expenditure of $125,000,000 for improvements adjacent to New York City besides other costly work upon more remote sections of the route.

It may be justly stated that the cardinal principle of the day of railroading is to increase the efficiency of transportation. To do this vast sums of money must be spent on terminals, cut-offs, reducing grades, eliminating grade crossings, increasing the number of tracks and the purchase of rolling stock. Millions and hundreds of millions must be expended by the great railroads for carrying on this work.

The railroad capitalists of industry, in the face of constant adverse legislation, are today confronted with this very serious problem.

Where is the money coming from?—George Calvert in American Industries for September.

Reservation in South Dakota to Be Opened in October Is Said to Have a Deep, Rich Soil That Yields Abundantly.—New Method of Registering.

One million acres of the farming land of the Rosebud reservation will be thrown open to homestead settlement and entry in Trip county, S. D., in October. The Trip county bill was passed in February, 1907, and for the last year an allotment agent has been busy allotting the Indians in accordance with the provisions of the bill. The work is now finished, and the actual registration for the big lottery of farms will take place Oct. 5 to 17. The drawing of the lucky names for the big claim will take place Oct. 21 and a million acres will be added to the productive agricultural domain of the world.

A person in order to register for a farm in the Trip county lottery will have to appear in person at one of the following places: Gregory, Chamberlain, Dallas or Presho, S. D., and O'Neill and Valentine.

The plan of this registration differs from former plans in that applicants will not be required to stand in line at registration, but will show their qualifications and be registered during specified hours daily, but will appear to their applications before any other qualified to administer oaths and at any hour at any of the towns named and then send them to James W. Witten at either Dallas or Gregory by mail, in person or otherwise, at any time before 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon of Oct. 17, says a Gregory (S. D.) correspondent of the Kansas City Star.

This will only relieve applicants from standing in line probably many hours, but enables them to swear to their applications at any hour, thus shortening their stay at the registration point.

It also prevents congestion caused by the assembling of large crowds at a limited number of registration points.

Gregory and Dallas are the only two registration points, the other four towns named being affidavit points. At the headquarters of the land office officials will be in Gregory and Dallas. At the four other towns mentioned affidavits may be made out for registration and mailed to the land offices in Gregory and Dallas. The report that has been circulated to the effect that a person can register by mail from anywhere in the United States is in error.

A drawing will be held at Dallas, S. D., on Oct. 19 to determine who of the persons registered will be given the right to make choice of land. If a person draws a number smaller than 4,001 he will be notified by mail addressed to the postoffice given in his application that he is subsequently given another to appear at some date, probably in the month of March, 1909, when he will be permitted to enter a quarter section or less of these lands.

Gregory and Dallas are the only towns named that lie along the reservation border, and applicants desiring to register will desire to see the country to be opened the great rush will be in those two towns. It is estimated conservatively that nearly 200,000 will register for a choice farm in Trip county.

Every unmarried citizen of the United States more than twenty-one years old, man or woman, will have the right to register; also the head and support of any family of any age, either man or woman, has the right to register. Married women are ineligible. No person who owns more than 100 acres of land or who has already received the right of homestead will be allowed to register.

Special privileges are granted to soldiers or sailors or ex-soldiers or ex-sailors of the United States and their widows. They may be represented by an agent who can register for them, provided he has their power of attorney and a copy of their honorable discharge papers; also they are allowed to file a declaratory statement in case they are successful for $2 which will segregate and hold the land for them for six months, within which time they must complete their filing and settle upon the land.

Each settler will be allowed to file upon a quarter section of 160 acres. For the land so filed upon in the first three months the price will be $80 an acre. For the lands filed upon in the next three months $84 an acre will be the price and after that time $250 an acre.

The payments are distributed over a period of five years, $80 being paid $100 at the time of filing and $100 a year thereafter for five years; $450 land will be $160 down at time of filing and $112 a year for five years. The $250 land will be $160 down and $48 a year for five years. Five years is the time of residence required, except that the government allows a settler to commute on his land at any time after fourteen months' continuous residence and get a patent for the same by proving residence and cultivation of the claim and paying the balance due on the homestead purchase price.

The general character of the fertile Rosebud country is gently undulating prairie, thickly covered with the succulent and luxuriant grasses of the country. The soil is a deep black loam and very fertile and very productive. Corn, oats, fax, millet, barley, wheat, rye and all cereals and vegetables give extra heavy yields.

The same character of land, some 400,000 acres of this same Rosebud reservation, was opened to homestead settlement in Gregory county, adjoining Trip county on the east, four years ago at $1 an acre. This land is now selling at from $35 to $55, and a few choice quarters have brought $60 an acre.

Gregory and Dallas are both in Gregory county, near the Trip county line, and are new towns. Gregory is the largest town in the Rosebud country, having a population of about 2,000, and is four years old. Dallas has about 800 or 1,000 inhabitants and is two years old.

HANCOCK CLARION NEWS NOTES.

Digs for Water: Gets Coal.

It is not often the case that one can go out on his farm and dig for water, finding water and coal in the under-taking, but that is exactly what Ed Nichols, Jr., who lives three and one-half miles out in the Hartford road, did one day last week. The scarcity of stock water made it necessary that he locate water somewhere, and for that purpose he began to dig. About three feet down he suddenly bumped into a splendid vein of coal 3 1/2 feet thick and got the water as well.

He immediately withdrew and will begin to work coal at once, which he believes will grow much better as he advances under the hill. He has a considerable acreage of the mine, so he thinks he can get the water as well.

Hancock are good for many things beside the voluntary raising of sawdust sprouts.

Now For Gravel Roads.

Messrs. Orville Patterson and Geo. C. Wilson have succeeded in raising by private subscription in town thirty or forty dollars for the purpose of loading and unloading gravel which farmers along the Pulville and Hartford roads have agreed to haul without charge for Judge Chambers on these roads. The gravel is easily obtained in that section; and Judge Chambers solicited such work from those living on these roads, with the result that $150 worth of hauling was secured by those who have lands in along these highways. The work will begin at once, and it is believed that this will be the beginning of something better for Hancock county in the line of gravel roads. This method of securing the work was made necessary by reason of the fact that no money was available for this purpose at the time from the county.

Had A Good Time At State Fair.

D. C. Moorman, of Glendene, former member of the Legislature from Breckenridge county, is a visitor at the Fair and will be here all the week. Mr. Moorman says he is having the time of his life, and declares he is only hoping for two things—the success of the Kentucky State Fair and the election of the national Democratic ticket.

"It looks now as if both my wishes will be gratified," said Mr. Moorman. "The fair is a big success and the outlook is bright for Mr. Bryan's election. What more could a good citizen and a good Democrat wish for—the success of his State and Country!"

Mr. Moorman served two terms in the House of Representatives, winning easily in a county that had been Republican for some time. He voted for the bill creating the State Fair and takes a great interest in the big show. Mr. Moorman is also a stock raiser and has some fine cows and hogs on his fine Breckenridge county farm—Louisville Times, Sept. 16.

THE PARTY OF YOUTH

Why Young Men Vote the Republican Ticket.

IT STANDS FOR PROGRESS.

New Voters Proud to Affirm Themselves With the Party of Lincoln—Its Past Performances Promise a Still More Glorious Future.

It is not without significance that young men who have just attained their majority are found, as a rule, voting the Republican ticket. The reason is plain. Those young men look on the Republican party as the party of hope, the party of promise and of performance, the party for whose candidates they will be proud to say in later years that they cast their first ballot, the party whose past needs no apology, no vain oblivion for blunders and for crimes, no record of slavery, rebellion and attempted repudiation, each stamped out in its turn by American freemen under Republican leadership.

The Republican party is eminently the party of youth. With Republicans the young men find the party which is so receptive to make the future still more glorious. To the Democracy is left the congenial occupation of flogging the nation with the hydra-headed vagaries, lured on by some new and delusive will-o'-the-wisp to the quagmire of quadrennial failure.

The youthful voter finds no attraction in such company. He prefers to march forward on firm ground, with the party of Lincoln, of Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt, of Taft and Sherman and Hughes, of nearly every great American, living and dead, whose career has added lustre to the closing half of the old century and the beginning of the new. The young man prefers the Republican party because it holds out a prospect for his own advancement, because in building up the nation as a whole it offers him opportunities to the individual, because under Republican administration there is a fair field for every one, and every citizen is protected in the enjoyment of that which he has rightfully acquired.

The new voter who takes his place in the Republican ranks and casts his ballot for Taft and Sherman will have the satisfaction not only of sharing in the Republican victory, but also of knowing that he has helped to assure prosperity for the country and an immeasurably better chance in life for himself and those in whom he is interested. Had he been permitted to befool the feast.

LABOR TURNS TO TAFT.

Toilers Scorn Danger in the Fallacies of Mr. Bryan.

Convincing evidence was furnished by the conference at Cincinnati last week by Judge Taft with Oscar Straus, secretary of commerce and labor, and T. V. Powderly, formerly general master workman of the Knights of Labor, that the attitude of labor is growing each day more friendly to Taft. The campaign of education which the Republicans have been carrying on has been effective, and the laboring man, says Mr. Powderly, who the candidate, is beginning to appreciate the fact that a restoration of business confidence through the election of Mr. Taft means more work and prosperity for him.

Secretary Straus announces his intention to go out on the stump for the purpose of explaining to the Bryan fallacies in regard to labor. Said Mr. Straus: "The most dangerous of these fallacies is presented in Bryan's slogan, 'Shut the money rings and well may he ask it for every one of his leading doctrines is a denial of that rule.'"

Mr. Straus classes Mr. Bryan's government guarantee of bank deposits as next in point of danger to his plan for the permanent ownership of railroads. Mr. Straus believes that government proposition is as great menace as the old 16 to 1 hobby. "To guarantee deposits," said Secretary Straus, "is to guarantee the loans of the banks, for, as a matter of fact, a large part of the bank's deposits is made up of credits extended by the bank to borrowers and by them deposited or placed on the books of the banks as deposits."

Mr. Powderly said among other things after his talk with Taft: "Labor never was better organized, better equipped, more independent or more respected than it is today. Never was it more secure in its share of the outcome of the commodity or the good will and confidence of employers and the public due to the effort of nonpartisan, well-organized unions. What labor organizations now enjoy, and they enjoy more than they ever enjoyed in the world before, came as the result of intelligent, co-operative effort exerted in a nonpartisan way through their unions."

Of course there are many men out of employment as the result of the recent depression, but to my knowledge men are returning to their old occupations all over the country and at their old rates of pay. I recall the awful panic of 1873 and that of 1893, and in neither case did men go back to work at their old wages. The case is different now, and to my mind it would be suicidal for labor to vote in such a way as to imperil the return of full prosperity, so rapidly manifesting itself."

The issue is just this: Taft and prosperity or Bryan and paralysis.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter. Mrs. T. C. Willard, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst forms of female complaints, no pain, no relief, no sleep, no appetite, no energy, no hope, no life. I was a wreck, a bundle of nerves, a bundle of misery. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, nervousness, and all the ills that come from a disordered system. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She will send you a copy of her book, "Facts for Sick Women," to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THAT OLD HEN AGAIN.

"Was on a Sunday morning fair. We all sat round the table. Disposing of a juicy hen. 'This is like the old hen again!'"

When father chose to raise his eyes From off his plate just then. And thundered, to our great surprise, "This is like the old hen again!"

Mother tipped the coffee-pot. Bill upset the table. Bridget dropped the tin dishpan. "This is like the old hen again!"

But where was father all this time? Oh, friend, please do not tell! He'd chased that hen across the lot And fallen in the well.

We fished him out dead and wet. He wasn't all, for when we got him halfway to the top He yelled, "Where's that hen?"

Now, preacher, don't ask all was said. But when you miss us then Don't think we're all in the ash-heap. It's that blamed hen again. C. M. B.

POULTRY HOUSE FLOORS.

When we left home mother said, "Goodby, boy; don't forget to pray and wash your feet dry."

Mighty good advice for everybody. We pass it to you and add—keep your hens dry in winter.

If you let the pens get foul and damp. Your hens will get the roup and cramp. If you let your hens wade in the snow. The egg record will drop down low.

"Doesn't matter," said a smarty, "if pens are wet underfoot, just so they're dry overhead."

But there were several wet spots on his cheeks when he dumped twenty-five beautiful Brown Leghorn hens on the alley ash pile.

An ounce of prevention might have saved him a hundred pounds of pure bred Leghorns, worth $50. Fifty dollars bought 1,800 square feet of incanned boards for our scratch-hen house, and $10 paid for 2,125 square feet of concrete.

We give thanks for the invention of cement every time we cross the floors. In winter we cover the cement with boards, but store them in the warm season.

We find heavy litter on bare cement satisfactory, but warmer and have never found other conducive to rheumatism.

boards of cement than from straw mixed with dirt and droppings. Thus in winter a dirt floor fancies is up against a ventilation problem. He must contend with natural moisture in air and ground, moisture from foot leeches, droppings, boards and the moisture of droppings absorbed by dirt floor.

Here is explanation for frosty walls, litter and frozen floors. Besides, the hens dig up the floor, soil their plumage in the dirt, the air is foul, there are hiding places for eggs, rats, mites and lice, and, with dirt overhead and filth underfoot, the place is unpleasant for visitors and attendants.

What a task to renew litter and floors in ground floor plants! Our permanent sanitary foot has no sink holes to trap your foot and make movable water vessels, roosts and nests wobble.

In thirty minutes we can renew the litter on 1,800 square feet and in one hour lay the boards.

If boards or cement show dampness, we simply draw back the litter at night, sprinkle lightly with slaked lime, and in the morning all is dry and clean.

To clean such a poultry house is boy's play. A lady looked into the pens when full of chickens, stifled and said, "Why, there's no smell here!"

Two Philadelphia reporters (ladies) while leaving the plant were overheard to say: "The chickens were white as snow, and wasn't everything clean?"

Cement floors pay in every way, especially in a sanitary way.

PIGEON DONT'S.

Don't choose a damp location for house nor steep hill for fly. Don't forget nesting material. Put tobacco stems in bottom of nests, and birds will flush with fine straw.

Don't neglect to clean up every week. Don't forget the hospitals in seeking a snug market. They want the best. Don't fall in kindness, for that tells in profits as well as good grain.

HOW TO MAKE CEMENT FLOORS.

Cement or concrete floors generally consist of two coats, the rough and finishing.

Our method is suitable for floors in general. If pressure is greater than that of poultry house floors, simply increase the thickness.

A three inch floor is sufficiently thick for a poultry plant.

The first coat, consisting of one part best cement, two of sharp sand and four of clean gravel, should be mixed thoroughly with water to the consistency required and packed and leveled on the surface prepared.

When this two and one-half inch layer has set well, sprinkle with water and apply a half inch finishing coat made of equal parts cement and sharp sand. The second coat should be perfectly smooth, for a rough floor should be scraped clean. For engine room make first layer three inches and second one inch.

Cement work on bare ground is seldom a success. The cement floor should be flush with the sill, and whatever is beneath it must be rammed and soaked. A loose foundation is, of course, no foundation, and if the floor is laid on dry material the moisture is absorbed from the layers and a failure results.

Our floors were laid on packed scum and clinder are satisfactory. All gravel and sand must be thoroughly sifted, and the concrete may be mixed on wooden platforms. Have a good current of air for drying, but keep out the rain and animals.

The floor will be sufficiently hard to walk over in two days. Do not cement later than August. If the work is extensive, as it will not dry out for winter, the concrete work separates well from the sills it is dry.

THE MUSHROOM HOUSE.

For hot climates like California, Florida, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the canal zone the hip roof of mushroom house is excellent. It is covered with a water proof roof, is generally six feet square, and the four foot sides may be covered with painted canvas or seaking.

The house stands on two foot logs and need not be cleaned, as it is moved from place to place.

The ladder to roosts should be removed at night to avoid preying animals.

In the rainy season wire screen may inclose the bottom, and a ditch should be dug around to avoid flooding.

If desired windows and ventilators may be added. Foot is style preferred. This is not only a cool, movable, sanitary house, but the house that breed in the accumulated dust under fixed shades have no hiding place.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLOWS.

If newspapers that waste space on fake stories of three-legged calves, hens hatching snakes and building smoking chimneys would print location of poultry news and practical poultry information, they would be helping their readers to get more cash to pay in advance.

In preparing young roosters for roasters keep them out of the gymnasium. It matters not how much cornmeal you feed, much exercise will be artistic and keep them this way.

The longest light fight is from the isles of Being sea to Hawaii and Fanning Islands, a distance of 2,200 miles. Birds arrive exhausted. Perhaps they rest by floating in the air, as swimmers do in the water.

Most of the fairs are held in the molting season when the birds are unsightly. The fair directors commit the graceful oriental dancers to clusters and yet allow the other hens to show in full dress. Is this altogether well-offered?

We find the best way to feed charcoal is in soft mass. Otherwise some fowls get none, for certain birds never visit the hopper.

The way some incubator chicks get lice is easily explained. An old hen's chick gets laid down and is slipped into the incubator for a minute to dry the little body. The hen crawls on to the eggs, the eggs hatch, and the lice crawl off the eggs on to the new chicks. Try it.

Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department at Washington has started a crusade against the sale of storage for fresh eggs. Thought when storage got into the Washington eggsmen some thing would overtake them.

One of our friends who set his goose at the same time we set our goose in the incubator left the gate open, and the hogs ate the eggs. Chickens have a mighty poor chance to escape from hungry hogs. Clean and screen that hogpen.

There is no reason why state and agricultural colleges should go to Canada or England for instructors in poultry culture. If the trustees of these institutions are uninformed, we take pleasure in notifying them that their Uncle Samuel is way ahead of Johnny Bull.

VERIFYING OUR RESOURCES.

Bureau Pushing Work to Be Ready for Commission's Meeting.

The first returns to the national conservation commission of the United States show that fine headway is being made with the inventory of our natural resources. Inquiries have been going out from the bureau to the government of the by the thousand, says a forest service bulletin. They have gone to special agents in the field, to the government land agents, timber land agents, county clerks, to township assessors, to manufacturers, to lumber dealers, to lumbermen and steamboat companies, and to farmers.

The chiefs of the government bureau have been wanting to know about lumber farm lands, timber land, mineral lands, about crops and crop production, about swamp and overflow lands, about irrigation, about navigation, how far the use of coal and oil, and about the use of the forests and of timber and lumber, about how much of minerals we have left and the probable duration of the mineral supply, and about the use of the forests and of timber and lumber.

This is only the most hurried kind of general sum-up of the "schedule of inquiries" of the national conservation commission. Just what it really is can be seen only by studying a copy of this most unusual document, the "schedule," on which Uncle Sam is basing the first inventory he ever attempted to make of his natural wealth. It can be obtained by writing a letter to Thomas R. Shipp, secretary of the national conservation commission, forest service, Washington. The conservation commission also gets out "bulletins of progress" which show just how rapidly the conservation movement, started at the White House conference of governors, is going forward.

All the government bureaus are pushing work on the inventory of resources. The work of the forestry report may be made to the national conservation commission at its meeting in Washington on Tuesday, Dec. 1. One week ago, on Monday, Dec. 1, the conservation states and territories or their representatives will meet in Washington with the commission.

The work of compiling the great mass of material resulting from the inquiries sent out by the different government bureaus will be one of great responsibility, requiring expert knowledge and great ability. For this task President Roosevelt has selected Henry Gannett of Washington, assistant director of the Cuban census, who

FLEET LEAVES AUSTRALIA

Reply of Admiral Sperry to Premier Deakin Route to Manila.

Albany, Western Australia, Sept. 18.—In replying to the farewell message of Premier Deakin of Australia Rear Admiral Sperry says:

The public and private hospitality shown us during our stay in Australia waters has created mutual friendly sympathies and an understanding which years of ordinary intercourse could not have brought about.

Prime Minister James Newton Moore sent a farewell message to Admiral Sperry, regretting that Albany's greeting had not been expressed by greater numbers, but hoping that the welcome of a small community proved that Western Australia's enthusiastic admiration was equal to that of more populous States of the Commonwealth. Admiral Sperry in reply thanked the Premier. He assured him that the reception tendered the Americans would always be remembered appreciatively and sympathetically. He regretted that circumstances prevented their seeing more of Western Australia.—New York Sun.

A Pig's Tale.

You certainly run up against funny things in the country," said the young man who had just returned from up state, where his uncle had a large farm. "On the way up to my uncle's house I had to pass the stockyards, where he kept a lot of pigs. As I passed those hundreds of pigs seemed to be having a regular stampede or panic of some kind—they were rushing madly about, apparently looking for something.

"I watched them for quite a while, but could see nothing but a small woodpecker sitting on the fence. When I got to the house I asked Uncle Jim what on earth was the matter with the hogs, they seemed so excited.

"That so? Well, it was this way—there was a spell back some weeks when I had a bad cold, lost my voice, and couldn't call those critters to their feed, so I got the idea of bringing them to the trough by tappin' my stick on the wooden fence, and ever since those pesky woodpeckers came around the hogs just go crazy, thinking I'm callin them to give them somethin' to eat."—New York Press.

Saving The Eggs.

"Why can't I have eggs for supper?" "You can't have eggs for supper," answered the landlady of the Plunkville House, "because an efficient gentleman is going to lecture on affluence at the town hall to-night. I presume you have some public spirit?"

He had.—(Southwestern's Book.

In one son-in-law's family, seven in four in one son-in-law; two great-grandsons, and three great-granddaughters, making a total of forty-eight votes for the Nebraska. He says he can produce more votes for the democratic standard-bearer than any man in Hopkins county and perhaps in Kentucky.—Madisonville Hustler.

A Hero of the First Class.

Fact is more thrilling than melodrama sometimes. According to a telegram from Owensboro, Charles May, a fireman on the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railroad, rescued a little negro child from death in a manner as spectacular as it was courageous.

The train was going down grade at high speed when the engineer and fireman saw the child on the track. They knew that the reverse engine would not stop soon enough to save the child. The fireman started down the running board and reached the pilot in time to snatch the little negro from the track. In reaching for the youngster's clothing he lost his balance and pitched from the engine. By a lucky chance he did not fall in front of the cowcatcher, and he managed to drag the child into the ditch unharmed. This sort of thing done on the stage for the entertainment and inspiration of audiences fond of the strenuous drama is frequently ridiculed because of its improbability in real life.

Possibly Mr. May may be awarded a Carnegie hero medal. As a rule medals recording deeds of heroism in letters carved in gold are very nice things to have around the house. It is comforting to leave them to posterity as proof that the family boasts an ancestor who was altogether game, but for his own personal use the genuine hero does not greatly care about medals. Mr. May, who risked his life in entirely disinterested effort to save a small black atom of humanity in a good deal more of a hero than the man who saves his sweetheart from the lake or a burning hotel or the father or mother who rushes to the rescue of a child. He risked his life unselfishly. He is in fact a hero of the first magnitude and it is satisfying to know that there are such men in railroad service where pluck sometimes avails catastrophe.—Courier Journal.

Loafing Acres.

Nearly every year there are a number of acres on the farm that are loafers, that do not contribute enough to the products of the farm to pay for taxes, let alone fencing. The first thing to do with these is to drain them.

Others are stony or gravelly portions which do not, and will not, produce sufficient crops to pay for cultivation; and the proper thing to do with these is to sow them to tame grasses, cover them over with barn yard manure, and let them stay in grass. Sometimes a field has been farmed so long that it has ceased to be profitable, and the only thing to do with this is to put it down in tame grass and apply manure heavily.

There are frequently acres on the farm that are out of the way, that could be better be planted to timber of some kind suitable to the neighborhood. Sometimes there are corners in a field cut off by a stream, or so inconveniently located that they cannot be farmed to advantage. The time has now come when we can put these in timber.

In some way or other every acre on the farm should be compelled to do the duty according to its ability. A loafer is wholly unprofitable and is very likely to get into mischief, and loafing acres are no exception. If they are not required to produce some useful crop they will produce weeds, and the seeds will be scattered by some means or other over the entire farm. Don't have any loafers about your house or your barn; and don't have any loafing acres on your farm.—Wallace's Farmer.

Sign of Prosperity.

Dunkirk, N. Y., September 28.—An order for 30 engines was placed at the Brooks plant of the American Locomotive company yesterday for delivery in November. Manager MacGarry declined to give the name of the railroad placing the order, stating there were reasons for withholding it for the present.

Why She Was Angry.

Madam," said the nice-looking young man, "I have called to remind you that the premium on your husband's insurance is already overdue."

"I don't care if it is," was the irate answer. "I've told my husband to take out a policy in an other company."

"Why, madam? You know our policy is the—"

And, believing that she might have good grounds for complaint, the young man departed.
